• About: EddyWiless

• Eddywireless is a leading offshore and outsourcing software development company that designs and customizes software applications.

• We provide the best service and business model for our clients globally and collect clients' software development requirements carefully with documentations and model flow drawing to make sure the project is on the right track. By using effective project management techniques, Eddywireless can provide high performance processes, including effort estimation, risk management, project monitoring, configuration management and so on, to manage your software projects. Our office is located near Tai Yuen Hi-Tech Industrial Park, Hsinchu, Taiwan. We have a strong software engineering team, user interface designers, and business consultants to serve our clients.

• Why Offshore Software Project

• The main reason behind the companies to use offshore and outsourcing software development services is the higher development cost of the local service providers. By outsourcing your software project, you can have a whole skilled software development team working on your project for the same or less amount than hiring one on-site software developers. You can get more of your projects done, faster, on time and under budget. You do not need to worry about training costs, hiring costs, and other fees etc. Eddywireless provides all the benefits for your company.
